Trackage Rights for A. T. & L. Ry. Sought Saturday

Would Mean Direct Line From Shreveport to Dallas, Texas

WOULD AID ROAD

Road Owned by Louisiana and Arkansas Railway Interests

WASHINGTON.—(AP)—The Interstate Commerce Commission was told Saturday by examiner M. S. Jameson, that it should permit the Louisiana, Arkansas and Texas railroad to enter Dallas by means of trackage rights over the Missouri Kansas and Texas railroad from Greenville to Dallas.

He said this would be in public interest and would assist the road to overcome a deficit under which it is now operating.

The Texas railroad commission also recommended that such permit be granted.

This new arrangement would make a direct line from Shreveport to Dallas.

At Shreveport the road connects with the Louisiana & Arkansas Railway, owned by the same interests.

Under the proposed arrangement the road would pay the Missouri, Kansas and Texas company $1.00 per train mile for each train operated over the joint line.

Killed in Attempt To Holdup Farmer

Louisiana Farmer Wounded in Fight at His Home Friday

CROWLEY.—(AP)—While Mrs. Raphael Manual, invalid wife of a Jefferson Davis parish farmer, looked on, a fight waged around her bed just before midnight Friday night in which a robber was killed, her husband was shot and wounded and their negro servant suffered a fractured skull.

The dead man was identified as Simon Darbonne, 25, resident of Eunice, Darbonne with two other men entered the sleeping chamber of the Manual and demanded to know where the farmer kept his money.

Manual argued with them and the robbers dragged him out of bed and slugged him. The servant, Eugene Covert, ran to the defense of Manual and was struck on the head. Covert swung Darbonne in the line of fire of one of the robbers and a bullet passed through Darbonne's body.

The two other intruders fled and those in the house believed that Darbonne was dead. But Darbonne raised his pistol and shot Manual in the hip. The servant wrested the weapon from Darbonne as the latter died.

Hope Dimming For Big Navy Program

Democrats and Republicans Fail to Agree on Type of Bill

WASHINGTON.—The chances for passage at this session of legislation authorizing all warships needed to bring the American fleet up to the tonnage levels permitted by the London and Washington naval treaties were dimmed Friday by the disclosure that Republicans and Democrats are far from an agreement on the type of measure which should be enacted during the depression period.

Although the House Naval Committee will not vote on the Vinson $616,000,000 warship authorization bill until Monday, it was learned Friday that several Republican members of the committee probably will not vote to recommend the measure to Congress unless President Hoover sends word the bill is in conformity with his financial program. Former Chairman Fred A. Britten, Republican, Illinois, said Friday he would make an effort to have a smaller program substituted for the Vinson bill.

In an attempt to clarify the atmosphere Mr. Britten and Representative George P. Darrow, Republican, Pennsylvania, will ask President Hoover Saturday to lay his cards on the table and make known definitely whether he is in favor of the Vinson bill or any type of naval construction legislation at this time.

He planned to leave for Washington Saturday night.

Dry Law's Repeal Termed Hopeless

Senator Bingham Sees Control of Congress by Prohibitionists

WASHINGTON.—(AP)—Senator Bingham, Republican, Connecticut, whose resolution proposing that governors call prohibition referenda was voted down Friday in the Senate, said he hoped "we may be able to secure repeal of the Volstead act in the not too distant future."

"The vote in the Senate demonstrates what the country has not appreciated—how very dry the Senate is and how hopeless are expectations of repeal of the 18th amendment."

"Only senators from so-called wet states were willing to vote for a gesture toward a wet referendum. Including the pairs, 11 Republicans and 10 Democrats were willing to go on record for a wet referendum."

"Knowing this I have been pressing for a modification of the Volstead act looking toward legalization of four per cent beer. Some of the wet organizations have refused to appear in favor of modification, believing that they had a better chance to secure repeal."

"The vote in the Senate demonstrated the stronghold which the dry organizations are still maintaining, notwithstanding the extraordinary change in public opinion."

Birth of Kiwanis Club Is Celebrated

Hope Kiwanians celebrated the seventeenth anniversary of this international civic organization Friday night, at the Capital Hotel. Will Atkins, principal speaker of the occasion, told how there were now 1800 Kiwanis clubs in the United States and Canada, with a total membership of 91,248 business and professional men. Each of whom met with their local club once a week, to enjoy the fellowship and hospitality of the meeting; and to bend their efforts to improve the communities in which they live.

C. W. Wellman, who also had a part on the program, told of the birth of Kiwanis, when four business men started the organization in Detroit 17 years ago this week. He encouraged the club to double their membership in 1932, and accomplishment which he said could be reached. Dewey Hendrix and Wellman had charge of this week's program.

William O'Neal Walker, of Hope, route 5, and a former member of the 4-H clubs of this county, was a guest of the club. He won second prize in the Kiwanis pumpkin growing contest last year. Other guests were E. I. Rophan and Joe Floyd, both former members of the club. C. C. Lewis, a prospective member, and J. Hirsch, a guest of A. E. Stonequist. 12 Candidates Are Qualified on Eve of City Primary

Nine File for Alderman With Three More Reported Probable

4 WARD CONTESTS

W. S. Atkins and Pat Casey in City Attorney's Race

With the deadline for the filing of pledges expiring at midnight Saturday, 12 candidates had qualified for the primary election February 21.

A contest is promised in every ward and for city attorney—the only contested candidate apparently being Pat Casey, seeking re-election as city clerk.

Nine men have filed for the aldermanic races, with three more reported as possibilities before midnight Saturday.

Three in Ward One

Ward One presents a three-cornered contest between Ray Anderson, Ed Holmes and Benjie Hurst. Anderson, a Co-op mentioned as a possible city candidate but as yet not filed. In the ward Dr. Don Smith, veteran alderman, is retiring undefeated, declaring his intention several weeks ago not to stand for re-election.

In Ward Two, Roy Stephenson, seeking re-election, is confronted by L. A. Keith, in what looks to be a two-man contest; but street rumors report that Benjie Buchanan may enter the race at the last moment.

In Ward Three, Theo F. Witt, seeking re-election, is opposed by S. H. Huntley, former justice of the peace, and a candidate for municipal judge last year.

In Ward Four, there is apparently no contest. In Ward Five, the Saturday night race will be between the ward re-election, and Clyde Mims, who was the only candidate filed and qualified; but it was reported Saturday morning that A. M. McKamey might enter the race before midnight.

Two For Attorney

In the city attorney's race, W. S. Atkins, the council's choice of last year, is standing for re-election by popular vote, being opposed by Pat Casey, former deputy prosecuting attorney.

As in last year's special election after Hope had been declared a city of the first class, each alderman will be voted on by the entire city. Aldermen must reside in the ward they are to represent, but voting is by the entire city instead of by wards as formerly.

Miss Jean Laseter gave a short talk on the meaning of "thrift," "Financial Statements and How to Interpret Them," was explained by the club president, Miss Mary Arnold.

Stone Church, Begun In 1820, Burned Twice, Has Chinese Sunday School

Old Stone Church at Cleveland . . . helped in the Civil War

When America was at war, with England in 1812, an Indian known as O'Mic was executed on a gibbet set up a few feet from the present site of the Old Stone Church in Cleveland, Ohio. The Indian had been condemned for the murder of two white trappers. Eight years after this gruesome hanging, the Old Stone Church was organized. Now, 112 years later, it still has an impressive influence in Cleveland.

Twice destroyed by fire, the old church still stands overlooking the public square.

In June, 1819, a Sunday school was started by a small group of men and women. The First Presbyterian church of Cleveland was born out of this movement in 1820.

Although this church was incorporated in 1827, it was not until 1832 that the first building was erected. It was dedicated in 1834. The second church was dedicated in 1855 and was destroyed by fire in 1857.

The zeal of the parishioners is seen in the fact that the next year, 1858, a new church was dedicated, but this one was destroyed by fire in 1864. Before the end of that year the church had been restored and rebuilt. Since that time a chapel has been erected and a parish house acquired.

The Old Stone Church has always been close to the life of the community. During the Civil War the Lake-side hospital was organized in the parlors of the church. It was designed especially for the care of southern refugees.

In 1865 the church's bell was cast. The inscription on it reads, "Cast for the First Presbyterian Church, Cleveland, Ohio, in the Year of Peace, 1865."

The visitation of Elizabeth to Mary is the subject of one of the memorial windows. Another is "The Recording Angel," and another is "Christ Blessing Little Children." Still another is "Beside the Still Waters."

Within a few blocks of the Old Stone Church there was, for many years, a Chinese colony. Chinese were welcomed into the church. They sent their children. Now the colony has given way to public buildings, but the Chinese, who now live in another part of the city, still attend the church and Sunday school.

Special classes for Chinese children—conducted in English—are held each Sunday afternoon, and the Chinese adults attend the regular church services.

From Poor Boy To Auto Magnate

Career of Sir Henry Royce Began as Newboy at Age of 10 Years

By MILTON BRONNER
NEA Service Writer

LONDON.—Sir Henry Royce, designer of a famous motor car and of the engine which enabled a British seaplane in the last performance for the Schneider cup to attain a speed of 400 miles an hour, runs true to form. Just what this means needs some explanation. It is a singular thing, but both in the United States and Great Britain men who become kings in the automobile business, seem to have started as poor boys and worked in humble positions before they finally reached eminence.

In the United States there easily comes to mind Henry Ford, who began as a mechanic, and John Willys, who started out as a poor "bike" repairer. In England the future Sir Herbert Austin started as an engineer's apprentice and the future Sir William Morris started as a mechanic.

Perhaps, in many ways, the story of Sir Henry beats them all. He was left an orphan at the age of nine. When he was ten he was earning his own living as a newspaper delivery boy in London. From 14 to 17 he worked as an apprentice in the shops of the Great Northern Railway. After he left the railway shops, he labored in a gun factory at Leeds, and at 17 worked for 54 hours a week in a tool factory for a wage of £2 15.

Unshooked Genius
All in all, he had but three years of schooling. But he had managed between jobs to get a good working knowledge of electricity and landed a job with an electric light company of London. He was only 19 when the company failed.

Not daunted, with a very small capital he started under the firm name of Royce and Company, a shop where he manufactured electric arc lamps. As arc lamps brought in little money, Royce started manufacturing dynamos in 1884. Then suddenly there came a boom with a demand for dynamos for lighting cotton mills, ships and local factories. But in 1900 the Boer War caused another slump.

Just about this time Royce bought a motor car to save time in seeking orders. However, he was disappointed by the unreliability and noise of his car. So he took it into his factory and pulled it apart to see how it was made. He designed a car of his own with a better and more noiseless engine and built his first automobile in 1903. It was small and had only 10 horsepower, but it interested the Honorable C. S. Rolls. They started the manufacture of cars in Manchester. The demand soon outgrew their capacities, so they formed a company known as Rolls-Royce and built a plant at Derby.

As they only had $50,000 capital and an "architect" would have cost about $5000, Royce himself designed the first block of the present plant, and it was opened in 1906.

Designed Record Plane Engines
Sir Henry is still a director and large shareholder of the concern and is also its chief engineer. It is he who has gone on perfecting Rolls-Royce engines. Of was the engine he designed and manufactured which gave the British superiority over the Germans in the air in the last year of the World War. He made the engine for the airplane in which Sir John Alcock and Sir Arthur W. Brown made the first flight across the Atlantic. It was he who designed all the engines which in the past few years have enabled the British Royal Air Force to win three successive times in the race for the Schneider Air Trophy.

And all the time, while much lesser men were being honored with titles, he remained plain Henry Royce. Finally, in 1926, he was created a baronet. Last year, when a big luncheon was given in his honor, he insisted that among the invited guests should be the old workmen and foremen who had helped him in his earlier struggling years.

The manner of man he is, is best illustrated by a motto he has painted over one of the doors at the great Derby plant:
"Why are we poor? Because we waste, and the thing we waste most is TIME."

"Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde" Is "The Stuff That Dreams Are Made Of"

Stevenson Had Idea of Dual-Personality Theme But Was Stuck on How to Develop It Until "Morpheus" Helped Him

Robert Louis Stevenson dreamed "Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde," which is considered today one of the leading mystery thrillers of all time.

This interesting fact was brought to light in research into the spirit of the story at the Paramount studios where Fredric March filmed the famous dual-personality role.

Investigation shows that Stevenson had been seeking a story in which to embody his theory of the duality of man's nature.

Mrs. Stevenson, herself, described the occasion.

Let's Practice Economy

In Our City Government
As We Do In Our Own Homes

The depression has taught every man, woman and child in the city of Hope the meaning of the word "ECONOMY." We all know the value of a dollar and we are all trying to get the most we can for the money we have to spend. Prices of all commodities are falling, yet the cost of the city government in Hope has been mounting day by day.

That condition must be remedied and there is only one way to do it. There must be a change. There must be New Men on the City Council Before It Can Be Done.

We, the undersigned

LEX HELMS from Ward One,
L. A. KEITH from Ward Two,
S. F. HUNTLEY from Ward Three,
CLYDE A. MONTS from Ward Four, have announced our candidacies for aldermen from our respective wards and we are basing our candidacies on

Our Pledge For Economy and Change in the City Government

We favor and pledge our best efforts toward reducing the salaries of every employee of the city, including employees of the water and light plant, at least Twenty Per Cent, except the day laborers, many of whom are scarcely making enough money to feed their families, and the volunteer firemen, who risk their lives to protect property and lives for a mere pittance that will not pay for the clothing they ruin in fighting the fires in Hope. We, of course, intend and pledge ourselves to include in this reduction the salaries of the aldermen.

We Believe Water and Light Rates Charged by the Municipally-Owned Plant Are Too High

We can see no reason, after carefully studying the report of the earnings of the Water and Light Plant, why the people of Hope are charged the present high rate for water and light service. We believe that substantial reductions can be made in the rates charged and we propose to if there is any possible way to do it.

We pledge ourselves not to burden the city with useless employees. We want to see enough men employed to carry on the work of the city government smoothly and efficiently, but we have no political friends or allies that must be carried on the city payroll to pay our political debts.
